СЕНАТ США ВИЗНАВ ГОЛОДОМОР В УКРАЇНІ ГЕНОЦИДОМ

Сенат Сполучених Штатів визнав Голодомор 1932—1933 років геноцидом українського народу — про це повідомляє посольство України у Вашингтоні.

«Сенат США одностайним рішенням ухвалив двопартійну резолюцію, яка стала першим в історії правовим актом Конгресу США, де Голодомор 1932—1933 років визнається геноцидом українського народу. Так, зокрема, до постановляючої частини документа включено визнання Сенатом висновків Урядової Комісії США щодо Голоду в Україні (від 22 квітня 1988 р.) про те, що «Сталін та його оточення вчинили у 1932—1933 рр. геноцид проти українців», — сказано у повідомленні.

Як наголошують у посольстві, резолюція засуджує порушення прав людини, вчинені владою СРСР проти українців, її автори висловлюють співчуття жертвам Голодомору та закликають поширювати інформацію про трагедію.

«Щиро вдячні Сенатові США та головним співавторам резолюції — співголовам Сенатського українського корпусу, сенаторам Роберту Портману та Річарду Дурбіну за це історичної ваги рішення», — йдеться у повідомленні посольства.

Раніше документ затвердив комітет із закордонних відносин США при Сенаті.

Подібну ж резолюцію затвердив комітет із закордонних справ Палати представників Конгресу, і наразі документ очікує розгляду на пленарному засіданні.

A HISTORICAL NOTE ON THE HOLODOMOR

The Holodomor - death by starvation imposed on millions of Ukrainians during 1932-33 - was the centerpiece of the Soviet Union's ruthless campaign against nationally conscious Ukrainians opposed to Stalinism. Besides decimating Ukraine's political, intellectual, cultural, and religious leadership. Joseph Stalin's communist regime deliberately starved Ukraine's majority population, its farmers. After deporting Ukraine's most successful farming families, Stalin forced those remaining to surrender their property and join government-run farms. Given impossible grain quotas, the farmers resisted, and militias eventually stripped households of any food. Countless villages were blocked off from receiving any goods, and the borders of Ukraine were sealed. so that the people were trapped into a slow and tortuous death by starvation. Meanwhile, grain and other food products were exported to the outside world. At the height of the famine in 1933, 28,000 Ukrainians were dying each day. The Soviet Union denied that a murderous famine had ever taken place and compelled its subject Ukrainians to live this lie. To speak of the famine was a crime. Most of the world learned of the Holodomor only after the Soviet Union's collapse in 1991. Raphael Lemkin, who invented the term genocide and was the initiator of the United Nations Convention on Genocide, stated that the Soviet attack on Ukraine "is a case of genocide, of the destruction, not of individuals only, but of a culture and a nation." [This note is adapted with modifications from a 2015 Holodomor Memorial Dedication Committee text].

DENIERS OF THE GREAT FAMINE (HOLODOMOR)

"My friend Hnatek and I were going to school. Spring was starting, it was wet, snow melting wet. We were walking and after an hour Hnatek fell like horse. He fell in the mud. I went to him and saw blood coming out of his nose. Poor thing – he was so hungry and weak that he couldn't even walk.... Well, we heard that people were dying. In our village there was one poor family that had five children. They all died. Father and mother went together, one was left, but then all died. They took them on the carts because there was nothing with which to make coffins... They buried them. Later people died in the fields. Someone died here another there and then I heard that there was cannibalism... "

Such memories by survivors have accumulated and yet between 1932 and 1991 the Soviet regime denied that any famine had occurred. Such denial had a very long history. The use of the word 'famine' in references to the events in Ukraine at the time led to severe punishment and/or death. Those in the West who knew and spoke out were either not believed or ignored. Ellmen joins Mace as one of many historians, who believe that the silence initially surrounding the famine was not accidental but was part of an intentional policy and act of genocide. Such historians have since concluded that there was clear evidence of the Soviet policy being the key factor contributing to an artificial famine. There have been many deniers of the Holodomor, Historians based in North America who were involved in Russian and Soviet studies during the Cold War era 'were often trained by Russian émigré scholars' and it has since been argued, gave Ukraine's history of famine scant attention nor credence. Kyivan cultural writer Natalia Bilotserkivets notes in 1995 that the USSR's Ambassador to Canada. Alexander Yakovlev, whom she calls 'the ideologue of Perestroika'. states that: 'The famine of 1933 was nothing more than an exaggeration of bourgeois nationalists'.

The editor of a Canadian communist publication in Manitoba was to similarly note the Holodomor never happened and that it was a hoax. He went so far as to state that the Kurkuls were armed and financed by Nazi Germany and were conducting a systematic campaign of assassination of Soviet government officials. To add insult to injury, the aforementioned article was published during the seventieth anniversary of the Holodomor. Remarkably, even the collapse of the Soviet Union during 1991 has not led to the complete overthrow of this culture of denialism inside Russia or by its sympathizers. Although not outright denial of the Holodomor actually occurred, current Russian Foreign Ministry spokesman Mikhail Kamynin in opposing the recent classification of genocide given by the Ukrainian Parliament to the Holodomor, states that 'Ukraine was politicizing the issue'. The once Ukrainian Prime Minister and now President, Viktor Yanukovych, proposes the use of the term 'tragedy' rather than genocide to describe the Holodomor because he does not want to spoil ties with Russia. Recent resolutions by Russia's State Duma refuse to recognize the Holodomor as genocide, with Russia constantly challenging the very existence of Ukraine as a state. Natasha Lisova in discussing these developments notes that: Russia has been careful to avoid any actions that could subject it to compensation claims from victims of Soviet-era wrongs.

Russia's perspective was most evident during a 2009 debate between Emeritus Professor Serbyn with Professor Kulchytski speaking on the Ukrainian position and Professor Wheatcroft with Professor Kondrashin speaking from the Russian perspective at a public forum at the University of Melbourne in March 2009. The topic was Holodomor – Genocide or not? The debate deteriorated with an outburst by Wheatcroft waving a booklet prepared by scholars from Ukraine, USA and Canada, published to inform the world about the Holodomor, and calling out that 'it was propaganda'. He was referring to the statement noting 7 to 10 million deaths resulting from the Holodomor. What Professor Wheatcroft did not clarify to the audience was that this was a joint statement by 65 UN member states and adopted by the 58th UN General Assembly on 7 November 2003.
